Quick & Easy Guide to Article Marketing

Article Marketing Explained

Article Marketing is one way of promoting your website and product that can be achieved for FREE. As an additional bonus, this “free” method can boost your sites and sales, doubling and even tripling your income.

Articles are one of the easiest ways to promote your website in order to generate traffic and increase your earnings.

How does this work?

Write articles relating to your website and submit them to “free content” submission sites. It’s easy to do, takes little time and can increase your website traffic, sales and of course, your income.

How can article writing boost traffic and income?

The article on the free content site contains a link to your own website. Readers, after reading your articles, may choose to click on the link and pay you an unexpected visit. Having an article on the free content sites also makes the article available to other webmasters who may wish to publish that article on their site.

If they do, your article will include a link back to your site. And anyone who reads the article on that site can click on the link to visit your site.

As the list of your published articles grow larger, and more and more of them appear on different websites, the total number of links to your site increases also. Major search engines are placing a lot of significance on incoming links to websites so they can determine the importance of a certain site.

The more incoming links your website has, the more importance search engines attach to it. This will then increase your website's placement in the search results.

If you site promotes a product or service, the links that your articles have achieved will mean more potential customers for you. Even if visitors only browse through, you never know if they might be in need of what you are offering in the future.

There are also those who already have specific things they need on their mind but cannot decide yet between the many choices online. Chances are, they may stumble upon one of your articles, get interested by the content you wrote, go to your site and become enticed by your promotions.

See how easy that is?

Search engines do not just index the websites, they also index published articles. They also index any article that is written about your own website's topic. So once someone searches for that same topic, the list of results will have your site or may even show the articles that you have written.

And to think, no effort on your part was used to bring them to your site. Just your published articles and the search engines.

It is no wonder why many webmasters are suddenly reviving their old writing styles and taking time to write more articles about their site than doing other means of promotion.

Getting their site known is easier if they have articles increasing their links and traffic and making it accessible for visitors searching the Internet. Since many people are now taking their buying needs online, having your site on the search engines through your articles is one way of letting them know about you and your business.

The good thing with articles is that you can write about things that people would want to know about. This can be achieved in the lightest mood but professional manner, with a little not-so-obvious sales pitch added.

If you think about it, only a few minutes of your time is spent on writing one article and submitting to free content sites. In a short span of time, your article will be distributed to more sites than you can think of. Even before you know what is happening, you will be getting more visitors than you previously had.

If you think you are wasting your time writing these articles, fast forward to the time when you will see them printed and wide-spread on the Internet. Not to mention the sudden attention and interest that people are giving your website and your products or services.

Try writing some articles and you will be assured of the sudden surge in site traffic, link popularity and interest. Before you know it, you will be doubling and even tripling your earnings.

Nothing like getting benefits for something you got for free!

The 4 Things ALL Articles Must Have

The importance of articles to today's websites and Internet-based companies is immeasurable. They contribute to the success of a website by providing content and by driving traffic into one's site. Articles have become a key element in making a site work and earn a profit. A website operator and owner must have the good sense to include articles in his or her site that will work for them and earn them the many benefits articles can give to their site.

Articles have been known to be the driving force in driving traffic to a website. Articles are a factor in giving a site high rankings in search result pages. The higher a site ranks, the bigger the slice of the traffic flow pie he gets. With higher traffic flow, there are more profits and more potential for other income generating schemes as well.

But, it is not just about stuffing your site with articles; they have certain requirements as well. These requirements must be met to obtain the maximum benefits an article will provide for your site. A well written article will catch the eyes and interest of your customers and keep them coming back for more. They will also be more likely to recommend your site to others.

Here are some tips to help you and assist you in making your articles. Below you will read about four things all articles must have to make them successful and helpful in making your site a high traffic and high profit site.

Keywords and Keyword Phrases

An article must always be centered on the keywords and keyword phrases. As each website visitor goes to a site, there are those who are not just merely browsing but are actually looking for something specific. When this happens, a searcher usually goes to a search engine and types in the keywords they are looking for (e.g. Toyota Camry, Meningitis, Tax Lawyer and Etcetera). It could be anything they want.

The important thing is that you have an article that has the keywords that are related to your site. For example, if you maintain an auto parts site, you must have articles about cars and their parts. There are many tools on the Internet that help you determine what keywords and keyword phrases are most sought out, but Wordtracker® has been the best such keyword service for years. You can use Wordtracker® to determine what keywords to use and write about.

Keyword Density

Now that you have your keywords and keyword phrases, you must use them fully. An article must have good keyword density for a search engine to “feel” its presence.

Keyword density is the number of times a keyword or keyword phrase is used on an article. The number varies depending on the number of words used in an article. An effective article must have a keyword density that is not too high or too low. With a very high density, the essence of the article is lost and may turn off a reader as well as the search engines. It comes off as overeager. A low number may be ignored by the search engines. Articles should have one to fifteen percent of keyword density in their content for search engines to rank a site high in their search results. Getting a high rank is what articles do best for a site.

Good Article Content

Like what is stated above, you cannot just riddle an article with keywords. They must also be regarded as good reading material. Articles must be able to entertain people as well as provide good information and help for their needs. Articles should be written well with correct spelling and good grammar. If you want people to trust you, make your work good and well thought out.

People respond well to figures, facts and statistics. Try to get great information and as many facts as you can. A good and well written article will boost your reputation as an expert in your chosen field or topic. As more people believe in you, they will be able to trust you and your products.

Linking Articles

And another important thing to remember: if you are going to submit articles to E-zines and/or contribute your articles to newsletters and other sites, DON'T ever forget to include a link to your site. A little resource box with a brief description of your site should always be placed right after your articles that you have submitted. If people like your articles, they will most likely click on the link directing them to your site.

How to Create an Outline For Your Article

We've done it since junior high, expanded it more in high school, and even more in college. But no matter how many times a person has done it, writing articles has proven to be a task many have continuously avoided. Now at a time when writing articles could help your job or work, facing the job at hand can still be a challenge.

While there are a great number of people who do not have the same attitude in article writing as others, there are still those who would rather walk in piping hot coals than do some article writing. What sets some people apart from others towards article writing is that they are prepared and have some methods and procedures in writing articles.

One of the methods you can use to prepare yourself when tasked to write an article is to create an outline first. Creating an outline for each of your articles makes you prepared. You have an idea of what to do first and make a plan for your succeeding steps. Being prepared makes the job easier and faster. Being organized will keep your articles on target.

An outline can act as the design or blueprint for your article. This will guide you in creating the introduction, body and conclusion of your article. As you create your outline, you can write down some of the ideas and sentences that you feel will look good in your article. These can be some of the focal points that will help make your article creative, interesting and appealing to a reader.

A carefully planned and fully prepared project will guarantee and ensure a problem-free and worry-free procedure that can virtually go without any hassles. Creating an outline for your article will get you ready to breeze through writing the article in no time at all.

Here I will provide you with some tips and guidelines in how to create an outline for all of your articles.

Do a bit of brainstorming and jot down your brilliant ideas first. Think of some ways to attract the interest of your reader. Designate a time frame where you can write down all the ideas that you can use for your articles. By this time you should have done all your research and information searching. Review and reread your ideas and notes, gain mastery and sufficient familiarity with your topic so that writing everything down later will be easy for you.

The next step is to discover your sub topic and sub titles. Just as you will need a first sentence for your article that will immediately grab the attention of your reader, you will also need some for each of your sub topics. To be concise, you will need to get all the facts that will support and go against each of your points.

This is the frame or skeleton of your article. Now it is time to add the flesh and the meat of your article. You will need to connect all your paragraphs and sub topics. This will form the body of your article. While the introduction will usher in the ideas of your paragraph, you will need a conclusion. The conclusion will wrap up your points and drive home what you are saying in your article.

The outline for your article will also require you to write a first draft. This may take more than one attempt but remember that it is called a draft for a reason. Your outline shall be perfected as each draft is written and this draft is meant for your eyes only so there's no reason to feel ashamed. As you go on, you will clearly see the bigger picture and write an article that will perfectly suit what is demanded of it.

Reread and reread what you have written down. Always refer to your outline so that you won't drift away from what you had first written down. It's not hard to be caught in the moment and get lost in your writing frenzy. Your outline will help you stay on track. All those hours spent in outlining your article will not go to waste. This will serve as your guide in writing articles. Trust and rely on your outline because this will prove to be a very helpful tool in writing all of your articles.

5 Easy Ways To Get Your Creative Juices Going

Writing an article doesn't just mean putting down thoughts into words then typing and writing it. You have to capture the interest of your readers and get them to keep on reading. To get your message across, you have to get the attention of the reader and have a firm grasp of their interest and you have to pique their curiosity.

The main ingredient in baking up an article is a large dose of creativity. While creativity may come natural to many people, some just get into a block or something to that effect that can drive someone crazy. Many writers have literally torn their hair out when they get writers block and just can't seem to get their creative juices flowing.

Putting words into images in the readers mind is an art. A clear and crisp depiction requires a certain flair that only creativity can provide. Similes and metaphors help a lot, but the way an article gets entwined word for word, sentence by sentence then paragraph by paragraph into a whole article develops the essence of the article.

So just what do you have to do when nothing comes to mind? There is no surefire way to get the perfect ideas, but there are easy ways to get your creative juices flowing. No one way can guarantee you of having the perfect mindset but many methods may aid you in achieving that state of mind. Here are five easy ways for that.

1) Keep a diary or a journal with you always.

Ideas can be triggered by anything you may hear, see, or smell. Your senses are your radar in finding great ideas. Write all of them into a journal and keep it with you for future reference. You may also write down anything that you have read or heard, someone's ideas could be used to develop your own ideas and this is not stealing. Remember that ideas and creativity can come from anywhere; it's the development of the idea that makes it unique.

2) Relax and take time to sort things out.

A jumbled mind cannot create any space for new ideas. Everyone must have a clear mind if one wishes to have their creativity in full speed. Get rid of all obstacles that can be a hindrance to your creativity. If you are bothered by something, you cannot force your mind to stay focused.

Try to relax every time that you can and think about your experiences and interactions with others. Your experiences are what shape your mindset and your opinions which could be reflected on your writings. Try to discover yourself, find out what triggers your emotions. Discover what inspires you and what ticks you off. You can use these emotions to help you in expressing yourself and your ideas, with this you can grow creatively.

3) Create a working place that can inspire your creativeness.

Your working place can be quite a hindrance if it doesn't make you feel happy or relaxed. Creativity comes from being in a good state of mind and a messed up workplace that causes distraction won't be conducive in firing up your creative flow.

Surround your working place with objects that makes you happy and relaxed. You may put up pictures, or scents, objects that inspire, or anything that can get your creativeness cranking. A clean and well organized workplace also rids you of distractions and unwanted hindrances. With a good working place, you can work in peace and never notice the time pass by.

4) Set the mood.

Setting the mood requires you to just go with the moment or to induce your self to feeling what makes your mind work best. Finding out what makes you tick could help you find ways to get your creative juices flowing. Set the pace and tempo for your mood and everything else will follow.

There are many ways to set the mood. Some writers have been known to use alcohol, a little sip of wine to stir up the imagination. Some would like some mood music while others let the lighting of the environment create the mood.

5) Go on a getaway and just do something crazy.

Letting yourself go and have fun produces adrenaline that can make your imagination go wild. Take an adventure or a solemn hike. Whatever it is that is unusual from your daily routine can take the rut out of your schedule. In no time at all, your creativeness will make use of that experience and get your imagination to go on overdrive.

What to Do Before Submitting To Article Directories

To all writers and non-writers out there, now is the time to start digging up those creative writing skills back.

With modern communication technology comes the popularity of information-based marketing, which is one of the oldest and most effective techniques in getting targeted prospects to sites and converting them into buyers. This is why article writing, submissions, and publications are also getting popular.

There are already many tools that people can use to make the process of distributing their articles more easily. Though this is invaluable in getting the contents more exposure, this is only half of the story.

Let us take a look first at the common mistakes that some people make before submitting their contents to article directories:

1. Confusing the reason to promote the articles with the reason to write them.

In article writing, there are three key benefits why you are promoting them; branding, lead generation and promotion, which are all part of your optimization efforts.

But there is only one reason why you write an article, and that is to inform your audience. If the article is not focused on this primary and most important purpose, it will fail to achieve the three promotion benefits because no one will be interested in reading them.

You need to figure out first how to get people to read what is in your article, then make them click on your resource box. You can achieve this by producing better content.

2. Failing to maximize the promotional opportunities of article marketing.

You may know already that your articles can help you generate additional links back to your site. But do you know that you can get more visitors and better search engine results from those same articles?

Mention keywords at strategic places. Just be sure not to overdo them. Using anchor text (keywords) in the links in your resource box can also be very effective, but it is important to know the majority of the directories are not able to support this.

Remember that it is not only about the links back to your site. Part of doing well in your article marketing is getting picked up by publishers with a large number audience and gaining the ability of leveraging other brands because of the quality of your work. Better search engine results also are great benefits.

But these things do not put much money in your pocket. There are other factors that can turn your article marketing efforts into an opportunity that can boost your earnings, not just increase the number of visitors to your site.

Start out with a plan and see to it that your article will serve the function that you intended it to have.

3. Publishing content that does not help your readers.

Maybe in the process of writing articles, you are thinking that all you really want is links back to your site. And any visitors you article may generate is extra. Guess what? Not all article banks and directories are going to accept your content automatically. Oftentimes, they have some guidelines and specifications on the articles that they are accepting.

You can double the number of sites you can submit to by writing articles that the directories want to share with other people. All it takes is one publisher with a hundred thousand readers to increase your potential audience overnight.

Write the articles that publishers want in their publications if you want your article marketing to work the most effective way for you. This also means you have to obey the standard guidelines, do spell checks, research a good topic and maybe even hire a writer to produce good content on your behalf.

In the end, it is all really a matter of choice on your part. You can start getting a little exposure from increased links back to your site or you can enjoy massive exposure from a little extra time making quality content.

It will be your choice. You may not be aware of the fact that an article submitted to directories is not meant to have the same level of exposure as highly-targeted content ones geared to a narrow group of people.

Learn the difference between these two and it will surely help you know what kinds of articles to write and to submit.

Red Hot Tips To Get Your Articles Read

There are many people who dread having to write papers or articles. Many just feel like it seems to be too much work and it all just goes to waste when no one reads them. To some people, reading articles seems like work too, especially if the article is boring and very bland. Well, articles are supposed to be read, that's their purpose: to impart your message and information. If they are not read, then they are a waste of time and effort.

But all the same, articles have to be written to be read. It's just a matter of making them good. Making a good article doesn't have to be strenuous and straining. There are just some points you need to be reminded of, and some guides to follow. Once you get the hang of it, writing articles could be fun as well as profitable for you and your site.

Of course, writing articles must be about something you know about, that's why if you own a site, you probably are knowledgeable about that certain topic and theme. When you write about it, you won't have a hard time because you already know what it is and what it's about. It's just a matter of making your articles creative and interesting.

To make sure that your articles get read and enjoyed, here are six red-hot tips to get your articles read. These tips will make your articles readable and interesting.

1) Use short paragraphs.

When the paragraphs are very long, the words get jumbled in the mind of the reader just looking at it. It can get quite confusing and be too much hard work to read. The reader will just quickly disregard the paragraph and move on to much easier reading articles that are good to look at as well as read. Paragraphs can be a single sentence, sometimes even a single word!

2) Make use of numbers or bullets.

As each point is stressed, numbers and bullets can quickly make the point easy to remember and digest. When each point, tip, guide or method is started with a bullet or point, readers will know that this is where the tips start getting stressed. Format your bullets and numbers with indentations so that your article won't look like a single block of square paragraphs. Add a little bit of flair and pizzazz to your article's shape.

3) Use Sub-headings to sub-divide your paragraphs on the page.

Doing this will break each point into sections but still incorporate them into one whole article. It will also be easy for the reader to move on from one point to another; the transition will be smooth and easy. You will never lose your reader's attention or the point and direction of your article.

4) Provide a good attention-grabbing title or header.

If your title can entice a person's curiosity, you're already halfway in getting a person to read your article. Use statements and questions that utilize keywords that people are looking for. Provide titles or headers that describe your article's content but that are also short and concise.

Use titles like, "Tips on making her want you more", or "How to make her swoon and blush". You could also use titles that can command people, for example, "Make her yours in six easy Ways". These types of titles reach out to a person's emotions and make them interested.

5) Keep them interested from the start to the finish.

From your opening paragraph, use real life situations that can be adopted by the reader. Use good descriptions and metaphors to drive in your point, just don't overdo it. Driving your examples with graphic metaphors and similes will make it easy for your readers to imagine what you are talking about, making the experience pleasurable and enjoyable for them.

6) Utilize figures when necessary and not just ordinary and insipid statements.

Using specific facts and figures can improve your article by making it authoritative. But do not make it too formal, it should be light and easy with a good flow, like a friendly teacher having a little chat with an eager student.

Writing a Resource Box that Makes People Click

The Internet is the information highway. This phrase has been used so many times it should be nominated for the Internet Cliché Award. People that go to the Internet are subdivided into groups, but generally, they are out to search information. Whether for gaming, business, fun or anything else, the Internet has provided us with information that has proved to be very beneficial.

Through the recent years many people have learned the secrets of Search Engine Optimization. More and more sites have seen the effects articles have done for the traffic of their sites. Some have even created sites devoted entirely to providing articles that can be read by their website visitors and that have links leading to many sites that are related to the topics and subjects of the articles.

For example, the sites may feature many articles about a wide variety of topics. As a website visitor reads the articles they have searched for, they can find at the end of the article a resource box that can be clicked on to link them to the site that has submitted the article. Of course the article would be in relation to the site. Let's say if the article is about rotating tires, the resource box may lead to a link to a site that sells tires or car parts.

A resource box is what you usually find at the end of an article. A resource box will contain the name of the author, a brief description of the author, a brief description of the sponsoring site and a link. If a reader likes what they read, they will have the tendency to find out where the article came from to read more. The resource box will be their link to the source of the article and this will entice them to go to the site and do some more reading or research for the subject or topic they are interested in.

But like the article itself, the resource box must also be eye-catching to demand the attention and interest of the reader. While the resource box encompasses only a small space, providing the right keywords and content for your resource box will provide more prodding for the reader to go to your site.

Now that we know what resource boxes are, what are the benefits of having a good resource box?

Mainly it's driving traffic to your site.

Many sites allow articles to be placed in their sites because they can make use of the articles to fill their pages. They also get affiliation with other sites that can be beneficial for them as well. For the sponsoring site, when you get people to click on your resource box, you generate traffic that can be counted upon as potential customers.

So what would be good content for your resource box? Basically it is keywords, learning about the proper keywords that people are mainly searching for. There are many tools you can find in the Internet that can help you in determining what keywords to use. As mentioned previously, Wordtracker® is one of the best.

In writing your resource boxes, you must make use of all the creativity you can. You only get a small space for your resource box, so you better make the most of it. Try to catch the attention of your reader with resource box content that can make them give a second look. Unlike TV ads, you don't have visual aids to drive your point home. But you do have the power of imagination of a reader. With the right content, you can make them think and become intrigued.

Another tip is to use keywords that are related to your site. Do not mislead your potential website visitors. Build your credibility so that more people will be enticed to visit your site and browse what you have to offer. Make the people click your resource box by providing resource box content that makes a lasting impression. You only get one chance to wow them and hundreds of chances to repulse them.

Never underestimate the power of the resource box. It may be small in size but it will provide a significant aid in driving traffic to your site. A boring resource box will never get the job done. Be fun and creative, but at the same time show that you have a great deal to offer. Too much to ask for something that couldn't fit a paragraph? Yes and no, there are many tips and guides that can help you in doing this, the first step is realizing how important a resource box could be in making people click your link and be directed to your site.

If You Hate Writing Articles...

If you own, run, or maintain an Internet-based business or any web site, you need content. Plain and simple, everyone who has a site knows this. Even those who don't have sites but are frequent Internet users know this as well. Articles quench the thirst for information and knowledge of the people. Plus, the articles provide many other benefits for the site.

One of the benefits that articles provide is to help put a site high in the ranking in search results for keywords and keyword phrases that are relevant to the site. Articles also attract website visitors when they are published on other sites and in newsletters with a link to your site. And articles establish you as an authority, increasing the confidence and trust levels of customers to your site and company.

Many articles are also beneficial to both a company and its traffic. When the readers like the articles, they tell more of their friends, family and peers and recommend your site to them, providing for a larger volume of traffic. You get bigger sales if your traffic trusts and believes in you. Your product or services will be much easier to sell when they know you know what you are doing and what you are talking about.

So ok, we have established that articles are very important to a site and to business. Articles are crucial and to keep ahead in the game, a site must have articles, it is imperative. There is one dilemma though... not many people like writing articles.

Many website owners would rather spend their time on something else, and unless you're a big time company, you don't have the necessary resources to spend on a pool of article writers. Plagiarism or copying of other articles is frowned upon and could easily get you into trouble - worst case scenario; a hefty fine and jail time.

So what are the other options?

Well, for starters if you hate writing articles and you can't afford to hire people to write for you then don't. Get free articles from article directories like ElectricText.

Article directories like ElectricText have thousands of articles and specifically allow you to republish their articles as long as you do not change anything. So not only can you submit your articles, but you can also republish other authors' articles. Since you have permission to republish the articles, you won't have problems with copyright infringement and the following penalties and fines if you get caught for plagiarism.

But if you want to be able to edit articles so that you unique content, you may want to look into private label rights articles.

Private label rights articles are articles that you can do whatever you want with, within the limits of their license. Generally you can edit them in any way you want, place them on your site, name yourself as author, put them in a newsletter, etc... it's your decision. Always remember, though, that you will have to choose articles that are very relevant to your site. PLR-Content.com is a great source for private label rights articles as well as private label rights eBooks that can be broken into articles.

The potential downside to private label rights articles is that many of your competitors may have access to them as well. Since every site needs to be original and unique even though you have the same niche, you may want to edit and rewrite them to make them unique. You may also have to edit them a bit to include more keywords and keyword phrases to make them better.

Tip: A high quality "Article Spinner" (a program that helps you rewrite articles to make them unique) can help make editing private label rights articles far easier. Article spinners vary greatly in quality. One of the best article spinners is Article Rewriter Pro. You can try a 15-day FREE trial of Article Rewriter Pro. For best results, choose synonyms manually.

Another way to get free articles is to allow other sites which have the same subject or topic as yours to submit articles to your site.

This would be only to augment your existing content or else all your articles would be leading to other sites since these articles would have resource boxes with them that could link or direct the readers to other people's sites. That's why it is important to have your own articles, or private label rights articles you can label as your own.

Tip: To truly feel the impact of what a good article can do for you, go for original ones. There are many article writers who do part time and freelance article writing jobs that charge only minimal fees. You can get good articles that have all the keywords and keyword phrases you need and that people are looking for.

The investment you made for these articles would be worthwhile because you could use them for all the benefits you could offer. You hold copyrights to them and you will be able to use them anyway you want.

Good luck with your article marketing efforts! As your articles help you in building your business and your site, you will find that you constantly have new ideas for more articles to write.
